The quick laugh, a sick joke, the sympathetic nod, the cheerful "Hi there!", an active do-er planning the Berwick and other exchanges, an esteemed trumpeter and musician spreading his knowledge and talent, an understanding friend sharing the good and the bad—The 1968 Junction was originally dedicated to a complex, yet easy-going man, teacher, and friend—Mr. William Bradley. His untimely death did not weaken, but strengthen, our choice.

Penfield has passed its time of disbelief and despair and sorrow. Now, through the clouds we still have the spirit of an unforgettable man who was loved by all, especially his band.

The Light Of Knowledge???

Throughout man's history those civilizations which placed emphasis upon the education of their people are those which have flourished most.

If the modern world is to conquer such bitter enemies of mankind as hunger, disease, and wars, the enlightenment of all peoples by means of equal educational opportunities must become a reality.

I hope each of you will pledge your support, however insignificant, in the fight for equal educational opportunities both here and abroad.

Elmer F. Packer

Superintendent of Schools

penfield board of education

Seated: Mr. John Wilder;
Mrs. Elizabeth Flory,
Vice-President; Mr.
William Gamble, President; Mr. James Moser, Standing: Mr. Robert Lindsay, Jr.; Mr. David
Bush; Dr. Stanford
Friedman.

The enthusiasm for life, the willingness to meet it full on, has always been the characteristic of human young people. Given any kind of a chance at all for healthy bodies and challenged minds, young people just naturally go forth and do. So it will be with you.

For our part the experience of witnessing this enthusiasm of yours, and the experience of aiding you in developing your lives, give meaning and purpose to our efforts in the community in providing the place and more importantly, the people, with whom you have studied and grown.

As you go forth now as young adults, gathering experience, securing both academic and practical education, you will begin to assume some of the responsibility for all our lives. May your journey be a joyous one—may it be long and fruitful—may it light our way.

William C. Gamble

President, Board of Education

Light is a very appropriate theme for a high school yearbook. This word has so many meanings and applies to so many things necessary for life that it becomes part of our very existence.

To the believer "in Him was life, and the life was the light of men."

To the informed public it is the bringing of all things to light.

To the playwright who writes comedy it becomes light-hearted.

To the baker well-leavened bread becomes light.

To the builder transparent glass allows light to enter through panes.

To the scientist light is radiant energy which by its action upon the organs of vision allows us to see and enjoy our environment.

To the astronomer the fact that the earth rotates about the sun causing daylight and darkness is essential to his occupation.

To the space agency the fact that light travels 186,000 miles per second becomes basic to their research and development of space crafts and communications.

To the agronomist soil may be light and unproductive.

For our pleasure the T-V tube converts light rays into electrical waves and then converts them back to visible light rays.

To the educated man knowledge sheds light upon many subjects and thus increases his understandings.

We hope that your years in Penfield High School have been profitable. We hope that your teachers have guided you well in seeing the light of knowledge as opposed to the darkness of ignorance.

The beacon light has been lighted for you throughout the years to come. Pursue its rays in depths of your interests and potential. Only then will you enjoy completely the light of life.

Wallace J. Howell

Principal

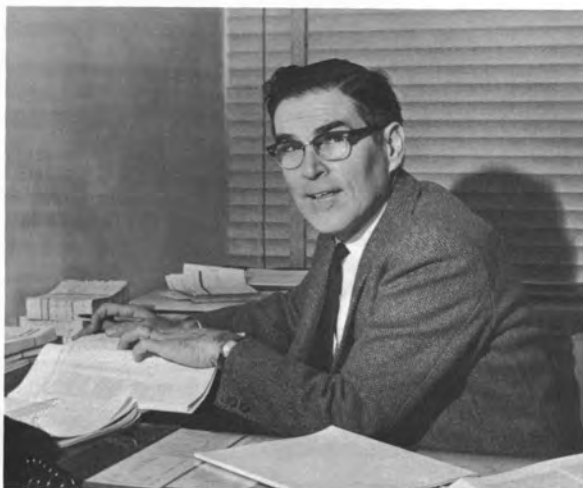

To the Class of 1968:

At the particular time that I have been asked to write this, the "theme of light" suggests to me only the name of Bill Bradley, for it is now five days after the untimely death of Bill, whom I have known as a fellow teacher and friend. If there were ever a human light to guide fellowmen, it was he, and I wish for all of you the fortune to be as successful as he was—especially in his teaching and dealings with the faculty and the students. Bill Bradley will be surely missed by all of us, and I am sure that if he knows how much he has influenced you and me for the short time he was on earth he is saying to someone, somewhere, "Hey, how about that."

This is neither Mr. Dennison's nor Mr. Stewart's history; this is OUR history as we have lived it . . . a picture here, a thought there, reminding us of the good and bad . . . of the highlights and shadows.

Not OUR seniors??!?

Class unity: From this . . .

. . . to this.

Victory in most sports!
PITTSFORD!!

But win or lose . . .

68's spirit—WOW!

Boycotts, black-out, wormy pool, snowin, computer-matched dance with cards that just did not match!

Shades of gray reflecting our concerns . . .

Penpointer and the budget fraternities and chemistry soccer champs and junior prom

These highlights and shadows pushed us and pulled us, forced us and led us, and finally drew us into THE SENIOR CLASS OF 1967-1968.

What happened to these two???

Senior prank number one ignited the senior spark. After that, 2, 3, . . .

Invading the guidance office . . .
Choosing colleges and careers . . .

We changed!

Sophomore Slaughter Day . . .

No senior lounge . . .

Youth center . . .

Successful pep assemblies

Teen League . . .

SATs . . .?

Winter weekend . . .

Diplomat Fair . . .

Our musical . . .

Dirigible Day . . .

Madison Exchange . . .

Highlights and shadows, bright days and dark days.

Each individual was only a passing shadow at Penfield High.

After starting new lives and meeting other people,

Penfield many only seem to be a shadow in our lives. Or . . .

. . . Maybe it was the highlight.

we honor . . .

WALK LIKE A MAN

BY: CARL WARREN DALE 1949-1967

Walk like a man,
go on and on.
Walk like a man
'til time is gone.
The heartbreaks, the sorrows, the evils of men.
Walk like a man from now 'til the end.
Some day soon you'll find life is done.
Some day it will all be run.
Then death, the friend,
the constant foe
will come
And last and away
you'll go.
Walk like a man into
the sun,
Walk like a man 'til
the day is done.
Forget about your longings, your dreams
and fears Walk like a man through the years.

We honor all the Penfield graduates in Vietnam. Those men give a part, or all, of themselves to preserve the rays of freedom throughout the world. Although some do not understand the necessity or reasons for this war, all valiantly perform their duties. The community should salute the Penfield men and their courage in the dark hours of fighting.

they saw american history in a new a junior is neither an upperclassman nor a lower, but a marvelous mixture of both.

junction

Junction

The yearbook is a reflection and a remembrance of a school year. Within its pages, the spirit of a school is revealed. This year's Junction has more candid pictures because the identity of Penfield High is not in its everyday happenings, but in its unique ones, and the students who create them.

“...the best is yet to be,”

—ROBERT BROWNING

What the poet said in 1864 is still very much to the point. It has particular meaning for the high school student about to graduate and embark on earning a livelihood — or further education. While opportunities have never been more numerous or diverse, the knowledge they require has never been greater. Whether or not your plans include higher education, the acquisition of knowledge remains a sure way to a better future.

How high the goals?

We at Xerox are working in a field of almost boundless potential. We call this field "graphic communications." Yet to say we are in the communications business suggests, at least to us, an obligation to a world in which people can communicate.

We want to add new dimensions to the ways they communicate, to make increasing knowledge more broadly useful. For if man is to progress, knowledge must spread freely throughout the world.

Lofty targets? To set high, high goals, to have almost unattainable aspirations is as important to Xerox as the balance sheet; perhaps more so.
